WAR AND MEDICINES

What Many of the Sick and Ailing Are Learning Nowadays.

So many doctors have gone to war, the services of comparatively few are available at home. Good proprietary medicines are more widely used than ever, and more and more people are finding out how great their merit is. At this time, when there is greater need of economy than ever before, food's Sarsaparilla, a thorough blood purifier, Pepsin, a real peptic, and Hood's Pills, a potent yet mild cathartic, are especially good and liked by all who use them. These medicines are remarkably efficient, whether taken in conjunction or separately.

HOWE SCALES have set the pace for more than a half-century. Weight correct if weighed on a Howe Scale. Portable, Dormant, Wagon, Truck, Miners' and Transportation Scales carried in stock at Chattanooga, Tenn. Can furnish all kinds and sizes in Scales.

Don't Experiment With Catarrh; It Often Leads to Dread Consumption

You Will Never Be Cured by Local Treatment With Sprays and Douches.

Catarrh is a condition of the blood and can not be cured by local applications of sprays and douches; this has been proven by the thousands who have vainly resorted to this method of treatment.

Catarrh should not be neglected or experimented with. The wrong treatment is valuable time lost, during which the disease is getting a firmer hold upon its victim, and making it more difficult for even the proper treatment to accomplish results. Though Catarrh makes its first appearance in the nostrils, throat and air passages, the disease becomes more and more aggravated and finally reaches down into the lungs, and everyone recognizes the alarming condition that results when the lungs are affected. Thus Catarrh may be the forerunner of that most dreaded and hopeless of all diseases, Consumption.

No local treatment affords permanent relief. Experience has taught that S. S. S. is the one remedy which attacks the disease at its source, the blood, and produces satisfactory results in even the worst cases. Catarrh sufferers are urged to give S. S. S. a thorough trial. It is sold by all druggists. You are invited to write to the Medical Department for expert advice as to how to treat your own case. "IF A MAN DIE, SHALL HE LIVE AGAIN?"

DR. GEORGE M. GAY USES THIS AS TEXT.

Picture of Man Preparing to Go to Front—Life and Its Meaning.

George M. Gay delivered a forceful and interesting sermon at Shinn Memorial church last night, to a large audience. The sermon was delivered as of the usual illustrated song service for Sunday night. Mr. Gay's theme was "After Death, What?" and he used as his text Job 14:14, "If a man die, shall he live again?" and spoke in part as follows:

"Human life is short. Our existence in this world is precarious. We are here today, and tomorrow we are not. A traveling salesman left his home on Sunday and returned Saturday to find that several of his friends, who were apparently in the best of health when he left, were no more. In Europe, as the soldiers rush into battle, no man knows when his turn will come. A jolly Britisher was joking with his comrade in the trenches; he raised himself to light a cigarette, and was instantly killed from a bullet from the enemy. Because of the enormous numbers of deaths due to the war and disease men and women are asking the ages-old question: 'If a man die, shall he live again?' with greater seriousness than heretofore."

"The man who is preparing to go to the front pauses as he packs his knapsack; the vision of home rises before him; he sees the faces of the loved ones as they gather in the old home, and his heart is filled with great longing. Will he ever see them again? Will he return from the battle? Is death his portion? Does death end it all? And his mind replies 'no.' Death is but an incident of life, a laying aside of the old garments, a donning of the new. He feels that the musty, old, worn-out, and deep within his soul he bears a joyous chorus singing of 'Life that shall endle.'"

"The ancient Hebrew seemed to be satisfied with long life and abundant flocks, herds, harvests and families. Not so his descendants; not so the moderns. All desire life that has no ending, abundant life, immortal life."

"It is not enough for us to say that we believe in immortality, that we feel sure there must be another world, that we are convinced that this life is but a step in human progress. We are reasonable beings and as such we must have satisfactory reasons for our beliefs. When the question of enduring life is raised there are five principal arguments advanced in support of a future life, and these arguments are: 1. The Physiological, 2. The Psychological, 3. The Analogical, 4. The Theological, and 5. The Moral."

"Space does not permit a complete treatment of any of these, but suffice it to say, that the physiological argument rests upon the assumption that the soul is a creative entity which manufactures its own body out of the elements of matter it finds ready to use. The destruction of that body cannot, therefore, in any way involve the destruction of the soul. The psychological argument is based upon the nature of mind-force as independent and indestructible, persisting forever. The analogical argument points us to nature, to the butterfly emerging from the chrysalis, and to the indestructibility of matter. So the soul at death is freed from the body to rise into upper air, and if matter cannot be destroyed, it is possible that the much finer soul elements can be annihilated."

"The Theological Argument demands more thorough treatment. It is based, first of all upon the rationality of the universe and of God. 'Is it rational to suppose that all the travail of the world, that all the human suffering, and success and failure, ecstasy and grief, will have had no purpose other than their own existence?'"

KAISER ISSUED DECREE

Increased Decisions Of Reichstag: Pledged Aid. Amsterdam, Nov. 4.—On the occasion of the constitutional amendment concerning the force, says an official telegram from Berlin, Emperor William addressed to Prince Maximilian of Baden, the German imperial chancellor, a decree endorsing the decisions of the Reichstag and avowing his firm determination to cooperate in their full development. The emperor's decree reads: "Your Grand Ducal Highness: 'I return herewith for immediate publication the bill to amend the imperial constitution and the law of March 17, 1873, relative to the representation of the Imperial Chancellor which has been adopted before me for signature. 'On the occasion of this step, which is so momentous for the future history of the German people, I have a desire to give expression to my feelings. Prepared for by a series of government acts a new order comes into force which transfers the fundamental rights of the Kaiser's person to the people. 'Thus comes to a close a period which will stand in honor before the eyes of future generations. Despite all struggles between invested authority and aspiring forces it has rendered possible to our people that tremendous development which imperially revealed itself in the wonderful achievements of this war. 'The terrible storms of the four years of war, however, old forms have been broken up, not to leave their ruins behind, but to make a place for a new view of life. After the achievements of those times the German people can claim that no right which may guarantee a happy future shall be withheld from them. 'The proposals of the allied governments which are now adopted and extended owe their origin to this conviction. I, however, with my exalted allies endorse those decisions of parliament in firm belief that the achievements of the Reichstag will be the basis of a new development, convinced that I am thereby promoting the well of the German people. 'The Kaiser's office is one of service to the people. May, then, the new order triumph over all the old forms which our people need in order to support the trials which are hanging over the empire, and with a resolute spirit within a bright future from the gloom of the present. Berlin, Oct. 28, 1918. (Signed) 'WILHELM, I. R. (Counter-signed) 'Maximilian, Prince of Baden.'"

"And another writes: 'Can it be that Christ and Herod, Paul and Nero, Timour and Fensel, drop through the blind half of death into precisely the same condition of unawaking sleep? Not if there be a God!'"

"The argument rests again upon the assumption of the benevolence of God. Did God make men simply to destroy them? Did He create the universe, make the world, people it with intelligent, spiritual beings, just for amusement, and to blot them out without half a chance to develop into what their capacities indicate they might become? Such a thought is a blasphemy, a denial of the moral nature of God. Nero acting drunk to the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the creator of a world without immortality."

"The moral argument takes into consideration the incompleteness of human life, the need of the preservation of the moral balance of the universe, and goes on to say that this balance cannot be maintained if death ends all, for the normal desire of man for enduring life, the premature mortality of nearly half the human race, the fact that there is no such thing as pure evil in this universe, necessitates immortality to solve the problem."

"A further weighty evidence of life everlasting is the New Testament, which would never have been written but for Jesus' triumph over death, and communicated this joyful message to his apostles. And then there is the testimony of the millions of men and women who trace the vitality of the belief in a future life as far back as records go, and always the finest minds of the ages have found consolation in this belief. And finally there are the words of Jesus himself, and there is assurance of His life; He recognized the dominion of death—all was life to Him. He is our spiritual leader, our moral guide, and we may be sure that He is not dead, but sleeping. 'When the mighty spirits of the past rise up to assure us that life is not in vain; when the Lord Jesus bids us not to be troubled; when indistinct messages from the dear ones across the borderlands to their loved ones here; and when deep within our hearts there is an untiring desire to live and live forever in the company of the good and great, we cease weeping and rejoice. He is risen; He is not here! 'He goeth before you.'"

AMERICANS BROKE LINE

Admits Berlin, Saying Withdrawal of Troops Followed.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—(Via London).—The war office says: "Villerspot was held against repeated attacks."

"Attacks east of Valenciennes were renewed in the afternoon but failed. West of Landrecies we repulsed partial attacks. West of Guise a partial attack failed."

"The French did not continue their great attack yesterday. They restricted themselves to partial attacks east of Bagnone and near Tervon, which were repulsed."

"A break into our front by the Americans west of the Meuse caused us to withdraw our front between the Aisne and Champagne."

"On the line of Quatre-Champs and Buzancy forefield engagements developed. Yesterday we gained some ground near Tally and beyond Villers Devant Dun."

"The war communication from headquarters says: 'Forefield engagements took place before our new lines between the Aisne and the Meuse.'"

FOR SKIN DISEASE IT IS WONDERFUL

H. J. Bowers, of Tracy City, Completely Healed by D. D. D.

D. D. D. Company, Chicago, Ill.: Gentlemen—While at a sanitarium in Kansas City about a year ago, I became affected with what I believe to have been one of the most aggravated cases of eczema any one ever experienced. I went to my attending physician and told him my trouble was setting me almost wild, and that I must have relief. He recommended three Ds, and you have no idea how much relief I got even from the first application.

I have a friend, an old gentleman, to whom I recommended your medicine, who stated to me that he had had eczema in such a violent form that he had not enjoyed a good night's sleep in twenty years, and the first night that he used three Ds he retired early and slept soundly all night. He is profuse in his praises.

I am unable to express myself in as fitting terms as I would like, and if you wish a statement from me to use as a testimonial, if you will prepare one, making it as strong as you like, I will be glad to sign it. Yours very truly,

Use Resinol
first for skin troubles

Delay in the proper treatment of skin troubles is dangerous. Every day spent in trying unproved remedies may only let the disorder spread and become more and more deeply seated. The value of Resinol Ointment is known. For over twenty years it has been used as a soothing, healing remedy for the skin.

It applied in time, it usually checks the itching and reduces the eruption right away. But even in stubborn, long-standing cases, it is surprising, how quickly this gentle, yet effective ointment brings results.

All druggists sell Resinol Ointment. Men with tender faces find the rich texture of Resinol Shaving Stick delightful soothing.
